NHRC urges for unhindered health services with the problems sorted out through talks

The Office of the National Human Rights Commission has monitored the health condition of Prof. Dr. Govinda KC of Tribhuvan University Teaching Hospital (TUTH) and whether or not the common citizens have received the unobstructed health services.

During the monitoring, the NHRC has found out that the health condition of Prof. Dr. KC is deteriorating and common people's right to get medical treatment is being affected following the situation emerged due to protest program staged by the doctors.

The Commission, therefore, urges the Government to address the demands placed by Prof. Dr. KC through talks and create environment for the unhindered health services for the common people.

The Commission also urges the concerned health workers, the government of Nepal and concerned bodies to save the life of KC, to stop the repetition of activities that infringe the rights of the general public to receive health services and to abide by the legal procedures keeping intact the professional dignity.
